

Doctoral School: Biology Doctoral School
Doctoral Program: Neuroscience and Human Biology

Subject code: BIO/7/32

Subject title: Methodology of writing dissertations L

Teacher and Neptun code: Dr. Zsákai Annamária (D5223E)

Credits: 4

Class hours: 2 hours/week, lecture

Aim of the course

The aim of the course is to provide guidance on doctoral dissertations in human biology / anthropology.

Course contents

The fields of human biology, the choice of topic in human biology.

The principles of writing dissertations: the requirements of form and content; the structure of dissertations, the relationship among the chapters, the magnitude of the chapters.

Research background: data collection (national and international resources).

The requirements of form and content of the chapters: introduction, review of the literature, the introduction of the circumstances, subjects and methods, the requirements of representation, the introduction of research results, the evaluation of research results, conclusions, summary, references, citation.

Requirements

The grade received for the course is based on activity in class.

Literature

lecture slides available

